American Plane Reserves Lamentably Weak In South Pacific

Enemy Concentrations At Rabaul Doubled In Last 10 Weeks

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, March 8—Alarmed at the "too optimistic" reactions in the United States to the latest allied victory in the Southwest Pacific which destroyed a 22-ship Jap convoy, authoritative circles tonight emphasized that the general strategic position in this area is substantially unchanged.

They issued a new warning of impending Jap moves.

While admitting that the overwhelming Jap defeat in the battle of the Bismarck sea undoubtedly will retard the enemy efforts, military sources denied emphatically that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is properly equipped to fight even an effective defense war of attrition much less attempt anything but purely local offensives.

Weak Reserves
With airplanes obviously the whole foundation of the Southwest Pacific defense pattern it is known and has been continuously stressed that Air Commander Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's reserves are lamentably weak.

A ranking military leader only a few days ago gave credit to Gen. Kenney for the superb maintenance program which enabled the allies to put the number of planes into New Guinea battles that there has been. But Gen. Kenney himself on several occasions has stated that "we are flying as combat warplanes today aircraft which would have been junked at least a year ago in America."

Headquarters disclosed that a picture taken by a reconnaissance plane shows 60 countable ships in Rabaul Harbor draws new attention to insistent warning by Prime Minister John Curtin of the massing of hostile forces.

Enemy Concentrating

It is generally known here that some concentrations at Rabaul during the last 10 weeks have been almost doubled, with their tonnage conservatively estimated at hundreds of thousands and including warships, transports and cargo vessels.

On the basis of the best information it is held that this shipping figure is vastly above the normal required to support the garrisoned troops in all Jap bases on New Guinea, in New Britain and in the Solomons.

The view adopted in most informed circles here precludes any interpretation except that the Japs are slowly and meticulously preparing an all-out offensive to rid themselves of the continuous sore spot represented by the allied foothold in New Guinea.

Wickard, Alarmed By Outlook, Says People To Eat Less in Future

WASHINGTON, March 8—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard bluntly warned the American people in testimony released by the senate appropriations committee today that they are going to eat less in the future.

Wickard frankly admitted when he appeared before the committee on March 2 that he was alarmed over the farm labor situation. He also said that he feared a decrease in food production. The testimony was made public for the first time today.

Asked whether the food situation could be cured by a reduction in consumption, Wickard replied:

"But I don't want anybody to think we can go down much further in the amount of food we are making available to the citizens than we are now planning to go. It is going to be something less than it is at the present time."

"The one thing we have plenty of is the bread grains, but people just cannot eat bread alone, and as far as other things are concerned, the great demand today is on proteins and fats—and that means meat and dairy products and some of the oil crops."

Would Revise Draft

Wickard urged a revision of draft instructions in order to stop drafting of essential farmers. He urged, too, that the migration of farmers to highly paid industrial jobs be stopped.

Wickard told the appropriations committee that the situation with regard to food production has been growing worse.

"Since I appeared before you a month ago, I have become increasingly alarmed about our inability to get enough farm labor to reach the goals we have established for farm production this year," he said. "I am more alarmed today than I was yesterday."

Sen. Green (D) R. I. asked if the problem could not be partly met by a reduction in food consumption.

"Well," said Wickard, "at the present time we are approaching pretty rapidly a level of nutrition in this country which they have in Canada, and which they have in Britain—though not yet, you understand."

Study British Plan

"We are tending in that direction," Sen. Tydings (D) Md., interrupted.

"We are tending in that direction," Wickard answered. "As a matter of fact, in order to satisfy myself, since we are not going to be able to give Britain as much as we had hoped, I am sending some one over there to study how they use their food and how much they get out of it, because they have cut down their consumption and have found better ways of feeding people."

Wickard added that there have been complaints that production in airplane factories dropped because of lack of meat for workers.

"Maybe we don't divide up the meat properly, but you cannot underfeed people and keep on getting increased production," Wickard warned.

"And maybe I feel a little sensitive on this," he continued, "because last year I had a number of people representing the civilian supply office saying that all we have to do is tighten our belts, and tighten our belts, and tighten our belts. But that doesn't cure anything."

Wickard said that he has representatives of the Mayo clinic and Columbia university conducting an investigation to see "how to get the most from our food."

He declared there would be further rationing "and the ration is going to be based on what constitutes a good and safe diet."

During his entire lifetime, Mr. Brunner was interested in Circleville affairs. He was always a supporter of the Pumpkin Show, served for many years as a trustee of Circleville Lodge of Elks, and was one of the organizers of the Pickaway Country Club.

Only immediate survivor is a sister, Miss Sylvia, with whom he made his home. Another sister, Miss Mattie C., died August 5, 1940.

Private funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the home, 120 Pinckney street, the Rev. Neil H. Peterson officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

Pall bearers will include Dr. D. V. Courtright, M. C. Warren, Edwin Shanton, James Carpenter, Dr. F. C. Shaeffer and G. L. Schlear. Friends may call at the Brunner home from Monday evening until the hour of services.

Move Seen As Paving Way For Grant Of Further Liberties In Territory

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, March 8—All connection with the Vichy regime of occupied France was severed today by the action of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, civil and military commander for French North and West Africa, in declaring all Vichy decrees invalid in territory under his administration.

"A decree signed in Vichy has no effect in French North Africa," Gen. Giraud said in a formal statement.

"German occupation has interrupted the free exercise of national sovereignty and this must have its logical consequences. The necessary steps will be taken."

The general's action was brought about by his indignation over recent publication without his approval of two decrees signed by Chief of State Marshal Henri Petain and Chief of Government Pierre Laval in the official journal.

Bouny Loses Job

The director of the government General Maurice Bouny was removed from office by Gen. Giraud for permitting publication of the two decrees on March 2. They were issued October 19 of last year by the Vichy officials, and governed the status of Jews native in Algeria.

The move by Gen. Giraud was interpreted in informed quarters as the opening wedge to grant further exercise of liberties to French North Africans. His declaration was tantamount to virtual repeal of the Vichy laws fashioned after the drastic anti-Jewish regulations drawn up by the Nazis in their Nuremberg laws.

Principal among the rights which are expected to be restored to residents of North Africa is the privilege of listening freely to foreign radio broadcasts.

PLENTY OF SEED AVAILABLE BUT DELIVERY SLOW

COLUMBUS, March 8—Victory gardeners and farmers will receive their seed orders but they will have to be patient because of the critical labor shortage in the major seed companies, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

Representatives of the major seed companies have asked John Barringer, chief of the Plant Industry Division, to explain that the labor situation coupled with unprecedented demand and early buying is making it impossible for some of them to even acknowledge receipt of orders because of a lack of clerical help.

The difficulty showed up originally in delayed deliveries from producers and large wholesalers of seed who in turn were the first to experience labor shortages.

"Many farmers and vegetable growers who sent checks with their orders are now demanding delivery or return of their money," one spokesman for seed companies said.

"We are doing the best we can. Farmers and gardeners will be obliged to be patient because we are all in the same boat, but there is plenty of garden seed and orders will be filled in time for outdoor planting."

Reminders Of Solomons Battle

WRECKED equipment, Japanese and American, still remains on sections of Guadalcanal island to recall the battles that raged there as U. S. soldiers and Marines fought for its possession. Beached on the Guadalcanal shore, top, is the Jap Ship Kinugawa Maru, which was blasted by the Americans during the battle of November 12-15. A Navy Grumman fighter plane is pictured, bottom, after it had cracked up trying to make a forced landing after running out of gas. Its base was under Jap attack at the time so the pilot tried to bring it down on a hillside. He escaped injury.

Solons Deadlocked On How To Transfer To Pay-As-Go-Tax Basis

WASHINGTON, March 8—Virtually stalemated on the question of forgiving any tax liabilities, the house ways and means committee was summoned into another secret session today to receive a withholding tax program formulated by a special five-man subcommittee.

Although there was a possibility of another showdown on the Ruml plan and variations to it, committee members appeared deadlocked on how to transfer the nation's income taxpayers to a pay-as-you-go basis.

Adoption of the withholding program by the full committee was considered certain, but to which year's tax indebtedness—1942 or 1943—the money collected will be credited was in doubt.

20 Percent Tax

Under this program, taxpayers would have to meet their March 15 and June 15 payments as already scheduled, but starting July 1 a 20 percent withholding levy would be applied to paychecks, while most other persons deriving their income from other sources, would pay quarterly.

If the plan advocated by Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Board, were adopted, all income taxes collected this year would apply to this year's liability, and the entire 1942 liability would be forgiven.

However, this plan, together with similar ones which propose (Continued on Page Two)

BOMBER DROPS STARS, STRIPES TO FRENCHMEN

LONDON, March 8—Residents of Nazi-occupied Brest, France, knew "The Yanks are here" Saturday when an American bomber crew dropped the Stars and Stripes bearing that message in the heart of the town, which is the site of a huge naval and U-boat base.

Sergeant Wesley Ranking of Hollywood, Cal., a Liberator radio operator, explained that he "took Old Glory along just to let them know we're in it."

The flag, staking out the first American claim on enemy soil, was weighted with empty shell cases.

Wallace Says U. S. And Russ Must Have Trusting And Close Understanding

DELAWARE, Ohio, March 8—Vice President Wallace today declared that there must be a close and trusting understanding between Russia and the United States to prevent the grave probability of Russia and Germany making "common cause" after the war is over.

Addressing a conference on Christian Bases of The World Order, under auspices of the Methodist church at Ohio Wesleyan university, the vice president said the future well-being of the world depends on the extent to which Marxism and democracy can live together in peace.

"We shall decide some time in 1943 or 1944 whether to plant the seeds for World War No. 3," Wallace said.

"That war will be certain if we allow Prussia to rearm either materially or psychologically. That war will be probable in case we double-cross Russia. That war will be probable if we fail to demonstrate that we can furnish full employment after this war comes to an end and Fascist interests motivated largely by anti-Russian bias get control of the government."

"Unless the western democracies and Russia come to a satisfactory understanding before the war ends, I very much fear that World War No. 3 will be inevitable."

"Of course the ground for World War No. 3 can be laid by actions of other powers, even though we in the United States following the most constructive course. For example, such a war would be inevitable if Russia should again embrace the Trotskyist idea of fomenting worldwide revolution, or if British interests should again be sympathetic to anti-Russian activity in Germany and other countries."

"Another possible cause of World War No. 3 might rise out of our own willingness to repeat the mistakes we made after World War No. 1. When a creditor raises its tariffs and asks foreign nations to pay up, and at the same time refuses to let him pay in goods, the result is irritation of a sort that sooner or later leads first to trade war and then to bloodshed."

"We of the western democracies must demonstrate the practicality of our religion. We must extend a helping hand to China and India; we must be firm and just with Prussia; we must deal honestly and fairly with Russia and even helpful as she works out her economic problems in her own way; we must prove that we ourselves can give an example, in our own American democratic way, of full employment and full production for the benefit of the common man."

JAPS FINALLY ADMIT LOSSES IN SEA BATTLE

NEW YORK, March 8—Japan admitted for the first time today that her navy had suffered heavy losses at the hands of allied warplanes in the battle of the Bismarck sea.

A full admission of all the losses was not made in the broadcast of an imperial headquarters communique stating that two destroyers and five transports had been sunk.

Along with withholding the facts concerning her entire losses Japan sought to mitigate the defeat by making the ridiculous claim that during the period from February 16 to March 3 its forces had "downed" 113 allied planes, destroyed 11 and had sunk four submarines.

Nothing was said of the fact that virtually all of the 15,000 troops in the convoy seeking to reach New Guinea had perished and that 55 planes which sought to protect the destroyed vessels were shot down.

American losses in the Bismarck sea battle totaled four planes, three ships and 1,000 men.

HOMING PIGEONS BILL AND COO OVER ARMY DUTY

CHICAGO, March 8—With plenty of billing and cooing, 5,605 swift flying homing pigeons, the symbols of peace, were off to the wars today, drafted by the army to carry messages in the far-flung battlefronts.

Among the new recruits, the second flock to be drafted by the army from Chicago, are some valued as high as $300 each which have flown 1,000 miles in two days. J. A. Ruzek, pigeon draft director and liaison man between the army and the American racing pigeon union, said the birds' destination was a military secret. He declared, however, that pigeons have done a marvelous job in this war, but that the bird death toll was exceptionally high in the Solomons.

COMMISSIONERS VOTE IN FAVOR OF SLOW TIME

Regardless of what system of time, fast or slow, that Circleville should adopt for its clocks, Pickaway county commissioners said Monday that they intend to retain "slow" or state time in the county courthouse.

"The clock in the tower will continue to operate under the time established by the legislature," John Keller, chairman of the board, said.

At Circleville council's last meeting the time question was discussed with no action being taken, although two councilmen said they had received many requests for a change in the present "slow" time system of operation.

HOMING PIGEONS BILL AND COO OVER ARMY DUTY

CHICAGO, March 8—With plenty of billing and cooing, 5,605 swift flying homing pigeons, the symbols of peace, were off to the wars today, drafted by the army to carry messages in the far-flung battlefronts.

Among the new recruits, the second flock to be drafted by the army from Chicago, are some valued as high as $300 each which have flown 1,000 miles in two days.

J. A. Ruzek, pigeon draft director and liaison man between the army and the American racing pigeon union, said the birds' destination was a military secret. He declared, however, that pigeons have done a marvelous job in this war, but that the bird death toll was exceptionally high in the Solomons.

COMMISSIONERS VOTE IN FAVOR OF SLOW TIME

Regardless of what system of time, fast or slow, that Circleville should adopt for its clocks, Pickaway county commissioners said Monday that they intend to retain "slow" or state time in the county courthouse.

"The clock in the tower will continue to operate under the time established by the legislature," John Keller, chairman of the board, said.

At Circleville council's last meeting the time question was discussed with no action being taken, although two councilmen said they had received many requests for a change in the present "slow" time system of operation.

MORE DONORS REQUIRED FOR R. C. BLOOD BANK

PLASMA SAVES "SOLDIERS"

Registration Blanks Open To General Public Until Wednesday

With the Red Cross mobile unit scheduled to visit Circleville next Monday and Tuesday in an effort to add 240 pints of blood to its vitally important bank, Pickaway county Red Cross is making a concerted effort today and tomorrow to line up sufficient registrants who are willing to donate a pint of their blood to help save the life of a son, a brother, a husband, a neighbor's son, or someone else who is fighting the war for us.

Red Cross headquarters will be open from noon Tuesday until 5 p. m. for registrations. Blanks have been placed in The Herald office, Betz restaurant, American Legion club, Elks club and several other places in the city where persons may sign up to make their donations. About 75 more registrants are needed.

There is no risk in giving a pint of blood, physicians representing Red Cross say. They point out that the entire process requires about 45 minutes, a donor being given a stimulant before the blood is taken and a lunch after the donation is made. Neither is there any pain in the entire process.

Blood plasma sent to the war fronts of the world has done wonders in cutting down the death rate in the present struggle. Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy, declares that the navy and the marine corps lost less than one percent of the wounded at Guadalcanal.

"The figure is astounding," Admiral McIntire said, "but it's true. In the first World War more than seven percent of the men wounded died of their injuries. The figures do not include men killed in action."

Admiral McIntire thanked the Red Cross blood plasma in addition to sulfa drugs which have been introduced since the last struggle.

Major General James C. Magee, surgeon general of the army, adds his testimony to that of Admiral McIntire declaring:

"There has been one discovery of our generation that helps to save many of the lives of our fighting men. That discovery is blood plasma.

"I can tell you that on all our fighting fronts there is a supply of blood plasma ready and waiting to be used when the need arises. The fact that this supply is on hand, however, does not mean that the Red Cross job is complete. Every time a transfusion is given another unit of plasma must be ready, and our stores must be enlarged daily. For who knows what this war is going to bring? Who can say whether we will need three million or five million units of plasma? We do know that vast supplies are needed, and we are confident that the Red Cross and the millions of patriotic Americans back home are going to see that war needs for blood plasma will be met and surpassed."

Here A Life Was Saved

THE picture, which has just arrived from the Buna battlefield where American and Australian troops did a great job of ousting the Japanese, shows the life of an American soldier being saved in a field hospital. Blood plasma collected through the American Red Cross blood bank program saved him. The fighting line was less than 500 yards away at the time the transfusion was administered to the seriously wounded soldier. A pint of your blood will help save the life of another of Uncle Sam's defenders.

Unrest in Plane Plants Predicted by Tokyo, Admiral Byrd Declares

SEATTLE, Wash., March 8.—Disclosure by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd that the Japanese had predicted labor unrest in Pacific coast aircraft factories, several months ago, introduced a new note into the complicated northwest labor picture today.

The renowned explorer, addressing a mass meeting of Boeing workers in Seattle, asserted further that the foreknowledge of aircraft strikes had been used by the Japanese propaganda machine to influence neutral nations to fight against the allies.

"Japanese war lords held this to be a certainty," the admiral said, "and they were gloating over it."

The mass meeting was called by the Boeing Aircraft Workers Union in protest against the War Labor Board increase of 4½ cents an hour.

Basis of the union's dispute was the request for a 95 cent an hour minimum base pay scale for starting workers, instead of the prevailing 63½ cent rate.

Senator M. C. Wallgren, addressing the approximately 4,000 aircraft workers, demanded that the Truman committee launch an investigation into the WLB decision. No case of work stoppage as a result of the mass meeting were reported by company officials.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 8.—Denouncing the recent War Labor Board salary directive, 2500 members of the AFL Aeronautical Mechanics Lodge 1125 today awaited the effect of their demands that the army and navy take over and operate the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation.

At an all day mass meeting, during which their leader accused the aircraft industry of collusion to "make more money instead of prosecuting the war effort," the unionists voted three resolutions: One denounced the WLB for its recent wage decision affecting west coast aircraft workers.

The second called for the army and navy to take over the company, which makes the B-25 bombers.

The third called for a government investigation of the present operation of Consolidated Aircraft, "to find out why more planes are not being produced."

Harvey W. Brown, president of the AFL union which represents more than 4000 workers at the plant, told the unionists:

"We won't ask the army and navy to move in if we get this investigation. They will take over automatically."

Delegates at the meeting heaped criticism upon the WLB.

R. J. Brag, identified as one of the union leaders, tore up the WLB directive and shouted:

"War Labor Board members who voted for this wage scale have the backbone of jellyfish and the minds of morons."

OPTIMISM OVER CONVOY VICTORY STIRS ALARM

15,000 Nipponese ground forces in the recently destroyed convoy is considered far too high to constitute merely a holding force. The enemy also is constantly improving his airdromes, sea bases and land garrisons on all islands encircling New Guinea and Northern Australia.

A high military spokesman maintained at a recent conference that the Japs suffered a serious setback in the allied campaign in Papua and more loss of face in their defeat last week, but he strongly stated that the high command anticipated a new and probably even more determined move by Tokyo.

Most correspondents have been trying for months to establish the fact that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is still not in a position to repulse a determined full scale Jap move on any front and all have been aware that since the outset of the struggle for New Guinea there have been dangerous shortages of all allied war supplies.

Shortages Magnified

If anything, observers here state, those shortages have been sharply magnified by recent developments. Any impression that Gen. MacArthur's air force is anything except an extremely small, but hard-hitting unit not only is completely erroneous, but also gravely misleading, they point out.

It is considered that the individual will and brilliant leadership alone has accomplished the remarkable feats which Gen. Kenney's airmen have recorded in recent weeks, but whether they would be able to continue the terrific pace in the face of repeated Jap offensive blows is a highly dubious question.

Similarly, it is pointed out, a complete misimpression seems to have been given that American ground forces in the Southwest Pacific are here in vast numbers. This definitely is not the case and Australians still are providing many times America's contribution.

Gravity Underestimated

Correspondents themselves have been forced many times due to security reasons to underestimate the gravity of the allied position, and at the same time seemingly underestimating the Japs.

On the other hand, communiques often have given every reason to presume that the Nips are on the run and most certainly results achieved with such small forces have been extremely commendable. However, when "the greatest raid in this war theater," as it was described, was launched against Rabaul, Jap New Britain island base, with only slightly more than 30 bombers participating some idea should be gained of where the shortages lie.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE ON C. A. WELDON FARM

Much damage was done to the shingle roof of the farmhouse occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Beal, Pickaway township, Monday at 8:40 a. m. The farm property is owned by C. A. Weldon.

The fire was the second at the residence in the last several months, the roof igniting in the previous fire.

Chief Talmer Wise drove the rural truck to the scene, helping to put the flames under control.

only a partial abatement of 1942 liability, have all met serious opposition in the committee and none has been able to win a majority to it.

Quick Action Necessary

Meanwhile, the internal revenue commissioner, Guy T. Helvering, has warned the committee that congress must act by April 1 if it expects the withholding program to go into operation July 1. Helvering says it will take his bureau a full three months to make preparations to collect taxes on the new basis.

To meet this April 1 deadline, four major legislative steps remain to be taken: The committee must report legislation, the House must pass it, the senate finance committee must then consider the bill and report it, and the senate pass it. With less than three weeks remaining, it is considered doubtful that the deadline can be met.

Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, a ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, is proposing that the question of foregone revenue be postponed until a new revenue bill is considered later this year. He would apply collections made this year by the regular quarterly payments and by the withholding tax to 1943 liabilities, leaving the question of what to do about 1942 until a later date.

GUY N. ANKROM DIES IN WALTER REED HOSPITAL

Private Guy Neff Ankrom, 37, who entered the U. S. army as a draftsman February 24, 1942, died Saturday in Walter Reed hospital, Washington D. C., where he had been a patient since October.

Private Ankrom, native of Darbyville and born August 29, 1905, was assigned to Camp Blanding, Fla., shortly after induction. After four weeks of training there he became ill and has been in army hospitals since that time. Private Ankrom was removed from Camp Blanding to the hospital at Camp Edwards, Mass., and from that hospital to Fort Devens, Mass., base hospital. Last Fall he was taken to Walter Reed hospital.

The soldier is survived by two brothers, Ray, of Darbyville, with whom he had made his home for 17 years, and Miller, a member of the Columbus police department. His parents, Samuel and Inez Grubill Ankrom, are both deceased. He never married.

Funeral will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Darbyville Methodist church, with burial in the village cemetery. Members of Arch post American Legion, New Holland, and Henry Page Folsom post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Circleville, will participate in the military service.

WORD ON PLANE CRASH AWAITED AT LOCKBOURNE

Lockbourne army air base officials are awaiting word concerning an army plane reported wrecked 50 miles northeast of Tucson, Arizona, believing that the plane may be a bomber missing since last Wednesday after taking off for Lockbourne from Portland, Ore., with nine men aboard.

Scattered debris was sighted during the week end by a civilian Aeronautics pilot and a land party was sent from Davis-Monthan field, Arizona, to the scene.

According to Lockbourne public relations office, a B-24 bomber with 11 men aboard has been missing since January 18 from the Davis-Monthan field. Examination of the wreckage is expected to disclose identity of the wrecked craft.

KNEECE RELEASED

Police Chief W. F. McCrady has been informed that Harold Kneece, arrested last week in Washington, Ind., on a check charge, has been released by Hoosier authorities. The chief said that under law any crime by a juvenile is a misdemeanor and that no laws provide for extradition of minors. Kneece, charged with three forgeries here, is only 15.

destroyed and 20 others probably damaged, without the loss of a single British plane. "There is no doubt the first round is ours, but there is going to be plenty of fighting yet," the broadcast said.

Americans Active

Flying at a height of only 200 feet and dodging barrage balloons and intense anti-aircraft fire, American Flying Fortress and Mitchell Marauder bombers yesterday smashed a convoy between Sicily and Tunisia, the communique said.

The bombers, escorted by Lockheed Lightnings, were after the convoy in three separate waves and also attacked the harbor of Sousse. Two ships were sunk and four others left burning badly, while another was hit directly and badly damaged in a second convoy and an eighth ship smashed at Sousse.

The Mitchells struck the convoy first, and the Boeing Fortresses then came along to finish the job. A third wave of Flying Fortresses carried out the onslaught against Sousse.

Red army columns meanwhile drove relentlessly across a 70-mile-wide front between Gzhatask and Olenino, northwest of Moscow, to seize more than 100 villages within the last 24 hours. Two Soviet spearheads were thrown out toward the headwaters of the Dnieper river and the Nazi-held fortress of Vyazma, threatened from the north and east.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko simultaneously pushed his drive on Staraya Russa, near Lake Ilmen, while to the south other Russian columns west of Sevsk drove closer to the vital Bryansk-Kiev railway in a move apparently designed to encircle the big southern base of Orel.

From New Delhi came the announcement that British warplanes yesterday battered the Jap Burma base at Auktaungbyin, 175 miles northwest of Mandalay, and strafed the area around Ak-yab, big port in northwestern Burma. Farther east, allied bombers ranged from Munda in the Solomons to the Kai Islands in the Netherlands Indies in a series of smashing raids on Jap airdromes and bases.

The RAF renewed its activity after a one-night lull to mine axis-controlled waters, losing two planes during the operations.

Last night three German planes were knocked out of the sky when a raiding formation of about 25 managed to penetrate the coastal defenses and tried to reach London. Bombs were dropped on the home counties and coastal points and the British capital had its 615th air alert of the war.

CURTAILED USE OF GAS URGED IN EMERGENCY

Gas users served by the Circleville office of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. were urged Monday by Dan McClain, local manager, to curtail their use of gas to solve an emergency caused by unseasonably cold weather.

Mr. McClain said his company had found it necessary to make the appeal after breakdowns in several large distributors from which Ohio Fuel obtains some of its supply. The frigid weather has caused so much gas to be used that auxiliary wells in the Hocking county area have not had an opportunity to refill.

Gas officials are urging the public to use fuel only when necessary.

SURPRISE RAID DRILL PLANNED FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 8.—Plans for New York City's surprise air raid drill today await only the approval of the army and the state civilian defense agency.

In his weekly radio broadcast yesterday, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia said the drill would provide a severe test of the city's defense units.

The mayor warned that Germany's increasing desperation in the face of repeated military reverses has increased the likelihood of a "token bombing" of the Atlantic coast thereby necessitating continuous practice in air raid protection.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN COURT STREET ACCIDENT

Damage was done to two automobiles, but no one suffered personal injury at 8:10 a. m. Monday in a North Court street collision, caused when a northbound Valley Public Service bus stopped 100 feet north of Rosewood avenue to pick up passengers.

Stopped immediately behind the bus was a truck bearing Kentucky tags. Behind the truck was parked the coupe of Miss Mary R. Kerr, South Washington street, a Walnut township school teacher. The northbound coupe of Max Stout, 403 South Court street, crashed into the Kerr car, causing much damage. Stout's auto was also damaged.

The truck struck from the rear by the Kerr car was not damaged and was able to travel on. Name of the driver was not learned.

Riding with Miss Kerr were Judson Lanman, Mrs. Rosemary Hughes and Helen Beckman of the Walnut street.

Patrolman Alva Shasteen, who investigated, said the bus was not struck.

Lee Sherman, son of Walden and Mrs. Sherman near Marcy and a grandson of Charles and Mrs. Sherman here, arrived home Thursday from Gardner Field camp a hundred miles north of Los Angeles, California, for a two-week furlough. Young Sherman is in a mechanical division as foreman of a squad of fifteen, servicing airplanes. Has been in the service two years and one month, he told us.

He will leave here for return trip Saturday.

Ashville

Saturday morning brought with it a snow-covering of about two inches, but within a couple of hours a "loblolly mixture" was right and keeping a safe distance from street passing autos, saved a lot of words you shouldn't say. But by late evening Old Boreas came along and turned what slush remained into ice and by Sunday morning the temperature measuring stick said 10 above. So March is doing a real Winter job of it in closing up account for 1943 season, but it's hopes here in earnest, that by the time Old Sol gets on the line around the 21st, and Spring starts doing her stuff, Winter will adjourn for keeps for the season.

Superstition or none about number 13, it is plain case enough that that's what put our local school basketballers on the skids against Hebron the other night in a real killer score to lose, 40-39. Now for the convincing proof. Thirteen foul line tries with but three throws getting through the hoop while a mere 5 out of the 13, and poor enough at that, would have brought victory. But we're not likely to stay that way and maybe next year the 13 hoodoo will follow some other youngsters.

WORD ON PLANE
CRASH AWAITED
AT LOCKBOURNE

Lockbourne army air base officials are awaiting word concerning an army plane reported wrecked 50 miles northeast of Tucson, Arizona, believing that the plane may be a bomber missing since last Wednesday after taking off for Lockbourne from Portland, Ore., with nine men aboard.

Scattered debris was sighted during the week end by a Civilian Aeronautics pilot and a land party was sent from Davis-Monthan field, Arizona, to the scene.

According to Lockbourne public relations office, a B-24 bomber with 11 men aboard has been missing since January 18 from the Davis-Monthan field. Examination of the wreckage is expected to disclose identity of the wrecked craft.

destroyed and 20 others probably damaged, without the loss of a single British plane. "There is no doubt the first round is ours, but there is going to be plenty of fighting yet," the broadcast said.

Americans Active

Flying at a height of only 200 feet and dodging barrage balloons and intense anti-aircraft fire, American Flying Fortress and Mitchell Marauder bombers yesterday smashed a convoy between Sicily and Tunisia, the communique said.

The bombers, escorted by Lockheed Lightnings, were after the convoy in three separate waves and also attacked the harbor of Sousse. Two ships were sunk and four others left burning badly, while another was hit directly and badly damaged in a second convoy and an eighth ship smashed at Sousse.

The Mitchells struck the convoy first, and the Boeing Fortresses then came along to finish the job. A third wave of Flying Fortresses carried out the onslaught against Sousse.

Red army columns meanwhile drove relentlessly across a 70-mile front between Gzhatask and Olenino, northwest of Moscow, to seize more than 100 villages within the last 24 hours. Two Soviet spearheads were thrown out toward the headwaters of the Dnieper river and the Nazi-held Fortress of Vyazma, threatened from the north and east.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko simultaneously pushed his drive on Staraya Russa, near Lake Imen, while to the south other Russian columns west of Sevsk drew closer to the vital Bryansk-Kiev railway in a move apparently designed to encircle the big southern base of Orel.

From New Delhi came the announcement that British warplanes yesterday battered the Jap Burmese base at Auktaungbyin, 175 miles northwest of Mandalay, and strafed the area around Akay, big port in northwestern Burma. Farther east, allied bombers ranged from Munda in the Solomons to the Kai Islands in the Netherlands Indies in a series of smashing raids on Jap airdromes and bases.

The RAF renewed its activity after a one-night lull to mine axis-controlled waters, losing two planes during the operations.

Last night three German planes were knocked out of the sky when a raiding formation of about 25 managed to penetrate the coastal defenses and tried to reach London. Bombs were dropped on the home counties and coastal points and the British capital had its 615th air alert of the war.

CURTAILED USE OF GAS URGED IN EMERGENCY

Gas users served by the Circleville office of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. were urged Monday by Dan McClain, local manager, to curtail their use of gas to solve an emergency caused by unseasonably cold weather.

Mr. McClain said his company had found it necessary to make the appeal after breakdowns in several large distributors from which Ohio Fuel obtains some of its supply. The frigid weather has caused so much gas to be used that auxiliary wells in the Hocking county area have not had an opportunity to refill.

Gas officials are urging the public to use fuel only when necessary.

SURPRISE RAID
DRILL PLANNED FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 8—Plans for New York City's surprise air raid today await only the approval of the army and the state civilian defense agency.

In his weekly radio broadcast yesterday, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia said the drill would provide a severe test of the city's defense units.

The mayor warned that Germany's increasing desperation in the face of repeated military reverses has increased the likelihood of a "token bombing" of the Atlantic coast thereby necessitating continuous practice in air raid protection.

WINGS AND THE WOMAN

"...and you'll always have tobacco in your old tobacco box!"

When I was a kid my father used to sing a song that ended up with this refrain:

"Oh, save up your money and put it in your sock
And you'll always have tobacco in your old tobacco box!"

Well, the words stuck with me, but I guess the moral didn't.

No matter how hard I tried ... no matter how many good resolutions I made ... I always ended up even. If I made more money, I spent more money. Finally, I resigned myself to it—sold myself the idea that I was the kind of fellow who never could save up any money.

But it's all different now!

About ten months ago, I started buying War Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. Figured it was the least I could do for Uncle Sam ... to be kicking in my 10% every month to help pay for the ways and means of licking the Axis.

That's the only way I thought about it ... until just recently!

Now, all of a sudden, I've discovered that—for the first time in the history of Yours Truly—I'm saving dough. Every month, rain-or-shine, hell-or-high-water, I'm sticking away a War Bond, a bond that'll bring me back $4.00 for every $3.00 I put in.

Those Bonds are beginning to mount up now. And I'm going to keep them mounting up. For I've discovered what a swell feeling it is to be saving money ... saving it on a plan that's regular as clockwork and twice as sure.

About the time those Bonds start coming due, my kid'll be ready for college. So you can guess what I'm going to do with the money.

And maybe I'll sing my father's song to myself ... only changing it a little:

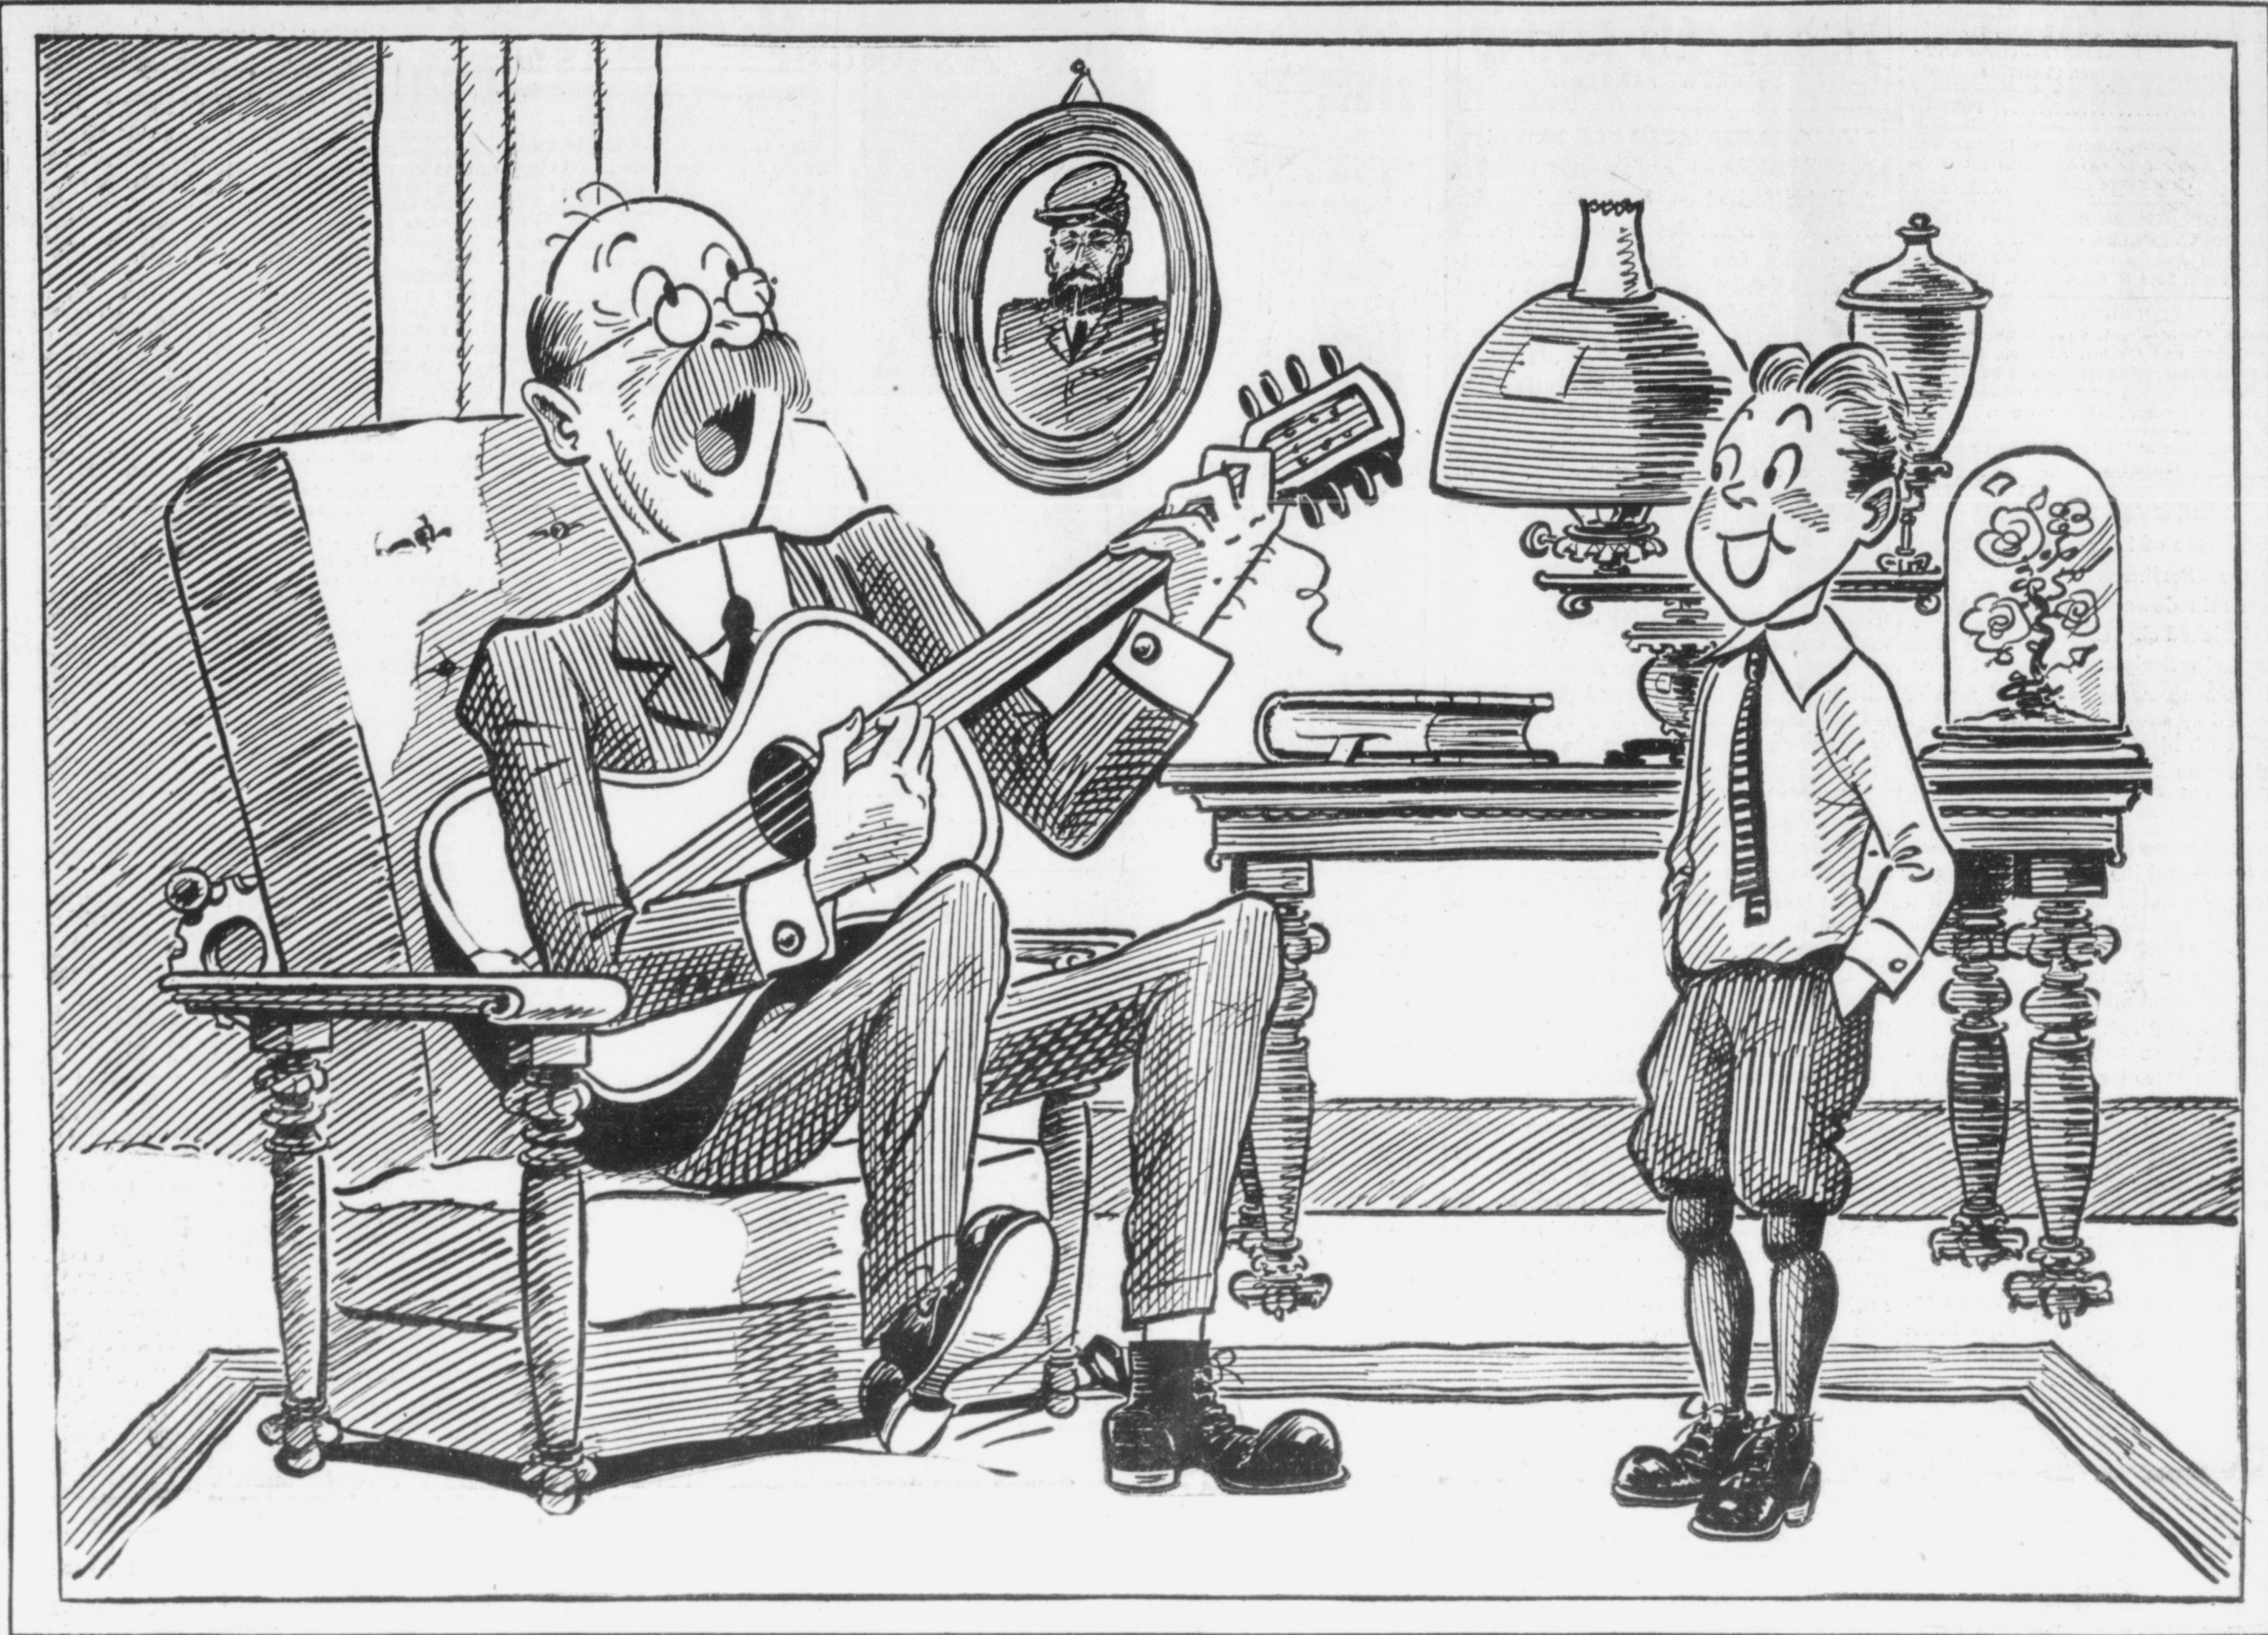

"Oh, save up your War Bonds and put them in your sock
And you'll always have tobacco in your old tobacco box."

FIRE OVER BERLIN

IT IS THE fate of Sodom and Gomorrah for the Berliners now. Fire and brimstone rain down from heaven to destroy that wicked city, even as it happened, according to the Scripture, in ancient Palestine. It comes now by means of men in stone poured by avenging angels. But the airplanes, with block-buster bombs of lyddite and cordite instead of fire and brimstone, general cause, purpose and effect are much the same.

There are some good men and women saved in Berlin and the other German cities now swept by a rising flood of destruction. But they will do well to leave quickly, for in many a Nazi city there will hardly be left one stone standing upon another.

The punishment must be heavy now, lest light and easy forgiveness should fail to teach the lesson once for all, that he who taketh up the sword must perish by the sword. For if it were not taught now, civilization might really be destroyed later on by a new and great eruption of violence.

DESERTED SCHOOL HOUSES

A SMALL Ohio city has a schoolhouse for sale, and the fact seems to arouse more than local interest. It is a very fine, modern building, constructed in a boom period when the community was expanding and the school authorities wanted to be foresighted. But as has happened in many another town, the expansion slackened. The building was left standing vacant and rather mournful amid an area of truck gardens. Now a real estate company wants to buy it.

It sets a person to thinking. There must be a lot of empty school houses in this country, or schools that soon will be empty, with grass growing on the playground. The pupils are going to war—so many who but the other day were mere children. The lower grades carry on, but the high schools and colleges are emptying. The school population shrinks, the boys and girls think less of books and more of guns and planes and ships, and nothing is the same.

BUSSES

BUSSES are taking it these days, and by "it" is meant more than the traffic. The gradual disappearance of the automobile has crowded them more and more, making them carry loads too heavy for their structure. They are hit in another way, too, by the rule forbidding speed beyond 35 miles per hour. Built for higher speeds that would enable them to eat up quickly the distances between towns, their mechanism is weakening under the strain. Yet they are indispensable.

The answer apparently lies in an even more intensified war effort on everybody's part which will permit us to return, sooner than hoped for, to the ways of peace.

TAYLOR RELEASED FOR MOVIE

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood's Gregory Ratoff called on Soviet Ambassador Litvinoff the other day in connection with a film on Russia which he is directing. Ratoff complained that he had hoped to get Robert Taylor to play the leading role in the picture, but Taylor was now in the Navy.

"I don't understand this country," observed Litvinoff. "You take the men who can do most for morale and send them off to shoot a rifle. In my country we exempt leading actors from military service."

Whereupon the Russian Ambassador picked up the phone, called War Information Chief Elmer Davis. Davis, in turn, telephoned Secretary of the Navy Knox, who readily released Robert Taylor for the Russian picture.

This has brought to the front again the whole question of Hollywood draft deferments. In the last war, key actors were deferred on the ground that they were important for morale. Britain formerly called up movie actors, but has now realized its mistake and has decided to defer them. In the United States, a start was made toward deferment, there was a certain amount of public resentment, several actors volunteered, and the whole thing has been in a jumble ever since.

Result is that the Army has a handful of soldiers who turn the troops into autograph seekers, while the country is minus stars who could do a great job for morale.

At present, for instance, the Army doesn't want Mickey Rooney, first because he is too short, second because he would disrupt any Army camp. Everybody would be watching him instead of the commanding officer. Likewise with Clark Gable. President Roosevelt himself wrote a letter asking him not to enlist. Gable patriotically enlisted, however, and now is a bombardier. Only trouble is that a 43-year old bombardier doesn't have the quick reflexes of a younger man and might endanger the entire crew of the bomber.

So the Army is up against what to do with patriot Clark Gable, and unofficially they think he could do a better job entertaining troops via the screen in Hollywood.

The movie industry would like to see the whole question decided one way or the other by the Government. Then there would be no stigma on an actor for sticking to the job he knows best.

Note: Gen. Eisenhower has just cabled from North Africa emphasizing the importance of motion pictures for morale building.

DARLAN'S CEASE-FIRING ORDER

A better idea of how many lives the deal with Admiral Darlan saved the U. S. Army can now be revealed.

Before the invasion of North Africa, the War Department made reservations in hospitals all along the East coast of the United States for casualties expected from the invasion.

Officials figured the landing force would have help from Gen. Giraud, but had not counted on Darlan's much more important cease firing order. The full effort of that order was not realized until the casualties began to come back.

It was then discovered that the Army (Continued on Page Eight)

Doctor Anxious To Help But Wants No English Cookery

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS COLUMN is as anxious as anyone to cooperate with all of our allies. It is also strongly in favor of English institutions, but there are certain places where it is compelled to pause and sound a warning.

We have just had a notice to the effect that "British and American housewives have joined hands across the sea in a reciprocal 'kitchen trade treaty' as local culinary artists began preparing dishes in the best English style." This is where I sound the warning and cry "Halt!"

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I am personally going to see to it that nobody in my household or kitchen prepares any dishes for me in the best English tradition. I am perfectly willing to send food to England, and I am glad to cooperate in any way, but I am not going to introduce English culinary art into my household.

"The British have made great strides in planning balanced, appetizing and nourishing meals," states the communication. If they have made great strides, they should have, because they started from raw and no matter how great the strides they have made, if my memory serves me, they will still be far from culinary perfection. I have lived, traveled and eaten all over the British Isles, and outside of London and one or two other places, I have never eaten a meal there that I could recommend as well planned or cooked.

One English Meal
I still start up in the middle of the night screaming in a nightmare with the recollection of a meal I once had at Bournemouth. Bournemouth is a seaside resort and we went to the best hotel, where one would assume it was possible to get something reasonably palatable. We had a long automobile ride and we were tired and hungry and looking forward to the feast.

In the first place, the waiter who served us had on a dress suit of a vintage that no archeologist could determine. It had turned a bright green, although it had originally been black, and as he stopped in front of my brother-in-law, my brother-in-law pointed to the spots on the lapels and said, "I'll have some of that, some of that, some of that, then some of that for dessert."

The first thing he served us was a kind of unpalatable soup. This was followed by a fish course. That slab of fish was cold and covered with a sauce which had congealed all over the surface and didn't taste like anything anyway. I do not know what happened after that, because my brother-in-law and I repaired to a more hospitable environment and went to bed hungry.

The English dessert is usually called a "trifle." I mean that is what they call it. The waiter says to you, "Will you have aerry trifle, Sir?" But don't be lulled by it. It sticks around for hours and sometimes for days. It lodges in all the resting places of the digestive tract and raises hell every place it rests.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. K.: What are the symptoms of whooping cough? In what stage is it the worst? Do you lose it entirely at the end of nine weeks? Can you still pass the germ to others after the whooping cough is over?

Answer: The principal symptom of whooping cough consists in a succession of paroxysms of coughing due to the laryngitis and tracheitis. The secretion is so tenacious that it is very difficult to get up and finally causes a spasm of the larynx which makes the patient take a long, crowing inspiration; this is the "whoop." The spasm always also induces vomiting, so unless this is corrected by good, nutritious food, considerable nutrition loss occurs. The stages of whooping cough are usually given as the catarrhal stage, the paroxysmal stage and the stage of convalescence. Naturally, the paroxysmal stage is the worst. Nine weeks is only an average period for the duration of the disease. Sometimes it lasts several months. It is probably not contagious after the catarrhal stage.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Bleeding and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

BUY WAR BONDS

From considerable familiarity with its people, I am convinced that Spain is democratic, with the exception of its Franco government but, from the United Nations' standpoint, its government has been a considerable worry right along.

Portugal is traditionally democratic. Those folk do not have to be steved out. It is odd, they are geographically so closely associated, but it is true just the same. I have seen it from visits in both countries. Spain is democratic, but Portugal is more so. Portugal is not of much consequence, speaking of land-fighting value—too small and too few, and not enough natural resources to wad a shotgun.

Portugal does, to be sure, boast a nice long Atlantic coast line—ideal for German planes and submarines, our way.

The Germans, though, cannot get into Portugal except from behind, but through Spain.

That route would be corked up by anything other than a German-Spanish agreement.

That is, it would be by anything but a German stamping down upon Spain.

All the same, cables relate that the Reich's troops are pouring through German-occupied France toward and across the Spanish frontier, obviously bound to effect an occupation of Spain as they did in the Balkan nations.

Spain may not be so easy as the Balkans. It is more compact and stronger.

There is a strong suggestion that Caudillo Franco has anti-Axis cold feet at last—on his own account but, of course, for nobody else's. That, however, is immaterial.

Latin America certainly is what frets Franco.

Spain is too tied up with its offspring on this side of the Atlantic to be disengaged of it.

This tie is not alone commercial. It is also sentimental.

The United States got over being pro-British in due season—during the War of 1812, for instance.

The Spanish countries, though, are still hooked together on sentimental grounds.

They split on themselves—Spain, Portugal and Italy.

Portugal predominates, because Brazil (Portuguese) is the biggest of the bunch, bigger in territory than all the rest of the Latin-Americas combined, bigger in resources than, maybe, the United States, and politically solid just now.

Well, that makes Caudillo Franco pause and consider.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"I'LL DRIVE you into town," Kay said dully. "I've got to get some dog meat anyway." Then she added, "How about a highball before you go? It's cold and it might do us both good."

"Just as you say," Jake said formally. She fixed two Scotch and sodas, hoping that the drink might soften Jake's attitude. But he remained aloof, indifferent. She felt as though he were a total stranger.

They drove into town, Jake driving with his eyes fixed on the road as though he expected to see a tiger leap out, Kay sitting deep in the corner, too miserable to even think. They got to the station ten minutes before the train was due.

"Don't wait," Jake said as he took out his bags.

"When will you be back?" Kay asked in a small voice.

"I really don't know. Right now I don't feel as though I could ever live in the house again. Goodbye. I'll be seeing you." He waved his hand, turned his back and went into the station. Kay watched him disappear.

It can't be true, she kept saying to herself. It can't be true. In a minute Jake will come out with a newspaper, all smiles, and we'll drive off down the road on our way home, together.

She couldn't move. She felt too cold, too weak. The train came in. She didn't look to see Jake get on. Mike passed her on his way home to supper.

"How's the pup getting on, Mrs. Kerr?" he asked.

"Fine, Mike." She'd forgotten all about the dog. Mike stared at her curiously.

"Waiting for someone?" he wanted to know.

"Oh, no, Mike." She roused herself, slipped over into the driver's seat. It was cold now. "I'm on my way home. Jump in and I'll give you a ride home."

The house seemed so quiet and deserted. She'd been alone many nights before, but then she knew Jake would be back the next day, the day after. She'd be waiting for him, planning what to give him for dinner, mending his shirt. Tonight she felt all hollow inside. She'd have to think this out, make some plans. But her brain was numb now.

She heated some soup, gave the puppy a bowlful, drank a little herself. Then she lit a fire, tried to read. But the words became blurred. She couldn't remember what she had read.

The thought of sleeping in their room was intolerable. Everything in it had intimate associations. So about 11 o'clock she got a quilt, lay on the sofa and with the aid of a sleeping pill cried herself to sleep.

She didn't hear a word from Jake. He called up a few days later and invited herself up for an indefinite stay. Kay was never so pleased to see anyone in her life.

"What's the matter with you and Jake?" Het asked bluntly the first evening while they were toasting marshmallows in front of the fire. "Why?" Kay wondered how much Het knew.

"I saw him having dinner at a little place we all go to when we're hard up, and he was with Pat." Het studied her marshmallow intently. She didn't want to see Kay's face at that moment, but she thought she ought to know what was going on. "He came over to say hello and I asked him what was the big idea. He looked tired and had a little cold."

"Oh Jake, that crazy boy," Kay cried out. "What did he say then?" she asked anxiously.

He just said, 'You better ask my wife and tell her for me that two can play at this game.' What does it all mean? I don't want to be too inquisitive, but anything concerning you two naturally seems to concern me."

"I don't mind telling you; it will be a relief to talk to someone." So Kay told her the whole story. "And now I don't know what to do," she ended.

"You poor thing, this is a mess," Het cooed. She sat there, quietly thinking for a long time.

"I think it's only fair to warn you about Pat," she said. "Jake's known her for years. He's never really been keen about her, but she does have one attraction for him. She's a charter member of the 'fun first' school of thinking. She's a bad influence for him now, especially if he's unhappy and uncertain about you. This is a fateful moment in his career."

"Don't I know it. That's why I'd give my right arm if I could have prevented this business. He's all mixed up mentally, emotionally, just when he needs peace and stability. And a cold—he never gets there." She was miserable. "He's just got to give that concert. It's only three weeks off now."

Kay took a poker and stirred up the fire. She wished she hadn't eaten so many marshmallows. She was beginning to feel sick. Everything made her feel sick, though, lately. Probably it was because she was so upset about Jake.

"How charitable do you feel these days?" she asked Het.

"What's on your mind?" Het said with one of those sweet, calm smiles of hers.

"I was wondering if you'd go back to town and take Jake in hand. He doesn't want me, but maybe he'd listen to you. You might be able to get him to take care of his cold, get some sleep, work properly." She looked wistfully at Het.

"But what about you? I don't want to leave you here alone."

"Oh, I'm used to it now. It's only for such a short time. After the concert I'll see Jake and maybe with that nervous strain off his mind we'll be able to work this thing out easily. It's such a little thing to break up a marriage."

"I think that's a good plan. He's been using my piano anyway. I could tell him that these last few weeks he'd better stay at my place so that he won't have to waste his time and energy trotting back and forth. I'm sure he'll do it. He likes my cooking," Het said with a laugh.

"It seems a shame to put you out like this, but I think it might be his salvation. You can keep me posted and maybe get in a quiet little word or two for my side. He'd believe you sooner than he would me now."

"I'll do my best."

So Het left the next day. She wrote to Kay often, giving her minute reports. Jake had moved into her apartment, his cold was so heavy that the doctor had ordered him to bed for two days. But it was better now and he was working hard. Well, too. He was really ready for the concert now. He was going out some, but Het thought that was sheer restlessness, pent-up energy in spite of his cold.

She was feeding him hot cereals, home-made soups, her own bread. He asked her frequently if she had heard from Kay. He seemed to be worried about Kay's staying alone in the country. "If she is alone," he had added bitterly.

So then Het had taken the opportunity and told Jake that Kay had never been in love with David, that she knew Jake was misconstruing the evidence. But he had cut her off then, said he wasn't as big a fool as everyone seemed to think he was.

Kay memorized every word of the letters, looked in vain for some hopeful sign. She was mind-sick, heart-sick. And she had no release. The ground was beginning to thaw and her road was a mass of impenetrable mud most of the time. She couldn't even get out to the movies. Walking wasn't much fun because she kept sinking into the mud.

Anyway, she felt so nauseated most of the time that she didn't have much urge to go anywhere. Even the little housework she had to do for herself took all the strength she had. If this kept up she either would have to send for Anna or go back to New York.

About a week before the concert the telephone rang. Kay always went to the telephone now with her heart fluttering, her hopes high.

FIRE OVER BERLIN

IT IS THE fate of Sodom and Gomorrah for the Berliners now. Fire and brimstone rain down from heaven to destroy that wicked city, even as it happened, according to the Scripture, in ancient Palestine. It comes now by means of men in stone poured by avenging angels. But the airplanes, with block-buster bombs of lyddite and cordite instead of fire and brimstone cause, purpose and effect are much the same.

There are some good men and women saved in Berlin and the other German cities now swept by a rising flood of destruction. But they will do well to leave quickly, for in many a Nazi city there will hardly be left one stone standing upon another.

The punishment must be heavy now, lest light and easy forgiveness should fail to teach the lesson once for all, that he who taketh up the sword must perish by the sword. For if it were not taught now, civilization might really be destroyed later on by a new and greater eruption of violence.

DESERTED SCHOOL HOUSES

A SMALL Ohio city has a schoolhouse for sale, and the fact seems to arouse more than local interest. It is a very fine, modern building, constructed in a boom period when the community was expanding and the school authorities wanted to be foresighted. But as has happened in many another town, the expansion slackened. The building was left standing vacant and rather mournful amid an area of truck gardens. Now a real estate company wants to buy it.

It sets a person to thinking. There must be a lot of empty school houses in this country, or schools that soon will be empty, with grass growing on the playground. The pupils are going to war—so many who but the other day were mere children. The lower grades carry on, but the high schools and colleges are emptying. The school population shrinks, the boys and girls think less of books and more of guns and planes and ships, and nothing is the same.

BUSSES

BUSSES are taking it these days, and by "it" is meant more than the traffic. The gradual disappearance of the automobile has crowded them more and more, making them carry loads too heavy for their structure. They are hit in another way, too, by the rule forbidding speed beyond 35 miles per hour. Built for higher speeds that would enable them to eat up quickly the distances between towns, their mechanism is weakening under the strain. Yet they are indispensable.

The answer apparently lies in an even more intensified war effort on everybody's part which will permit us to return, sooner than hoped for, to the ways of peace.

TAYLOR RELEASED FOR MOVIE

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood's Gregory Ratoff called on Soviet Ambassador Litvinoff the other day in connection with a film on Russia which he is directing. Ratoff complained that he had hoped to get Robert Taylor to play the leading role in the picture, but Taylor was now in the Navy.

"I don't understand this country," observed Litvinoff. "You take the men who can do most for morale and send them off to shoot a rifle. In my country we exempt leading actors from military service."

Whereupon the Russian Ambassador picked up the phone, called War Information Chief Elmer Davis. Davis, in turn, telephoned Secretary of the Navy Knox, who readily released Robert Taylor for the Russian picture.

This has brought to the front again the whole question of Hollywood draft deferments. In the last war, key actors were deferred on the ground that they were important for morale. Britain formerly called up movie actors, but has now realized its mistake and has decided to defer them. In the United States, a start was made toward deferment, there was a certain amount of public resentment, several actors volunteered, and the whole thing has been in a jumble ever since.

Result is that the Army has a handful of soldiers who turn the troops into autograph seekers, while the country is minus stars who could do a great job for morale.

At present, for instance, the Army doesn't want Mickey Rooney, first because he is too short, second because he would disrupt any Army camp. Everybody would be watching him instead of the commanding officer. Likewise with Clark Gable. President Roosevelt himself wrote a letter asking him not to enlist. Gable patriotically enlisted, however, and now is a bombardier. Only trouble is that a 43-year old bombardier doesn't have the quick reflexes of a younger man and might endanger the entire crew of the bomber.

So the Army is up against what to do with patriot Clark Gable, and unofficially they think he could do a better job entertaining troops via the screen in Hollywood.

The movie industry would like to see the whole question decided one way or the other by the Government. Then there would be no stigma on an actor for sticking to the job he knows best.

Note: Gen. Eisenhower has just cabled from North Africa emphasizing the importance of motion pictures for morale building.

DARLAN'S CEASE-FIRING ORDER

A better idea of how many lives the deal with Admiral Darlan saved the U. S. Army can now be revealed.

Before the invasion of North Africa, the War Department made reservations in hospitals all along the East coast of the United States for casualties expected from the invasion.

Officials figured the landing force would have help from Gen. Giraud, but had not counted on Darlan's much more important cease firing order. The full effort of that order was not realized until the casualties began to come back.

It was then discovered that the Army

Doctor Anxious To Help But Wants No English Cookery

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS COLUMN is as anxious as anyone to cooperate with all of our allies. It is also strongly in favor of English institutions, but there are certain places where it is compelled to pause and sound a warning.

We have just had a notice to the effect that "British and American housewives have joined hands across the sea in a reciprocal 'kitchen trade' as local culinary artists began preparing dishes in the best English style." This is where I sound the warning and cry "Halt!"

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I am personally going to see to it that nobody in my household or kitchen prepares any dishes for me in the best English tradition. I am perfectly willing to send food to England, and I am glad to cooperate in any way, but I am not going to introduce English culinary art into my household.

The British have made great strides in planning balanced, appetizing and nourishing meals, states the communication. If they have made great strides, they should have, because they started from raw and no matter how great the strides they have made, if my memory serves me, they will still be far from culinary perfection. I have lived, traveled and eaten all over the British Isles, and outside of London and one or two other places, I have never eaten a meal there that I could recommend as well planned or cooked.

One English Meal

I still start up in the middle of the night screaming in a nightmare with the recollection of a meal I once had at Bournemouth. Bournemouth is a seaside resort and we went to the best hotel, where one would assume it was possible to get something reasonably palatable. We had had a long automobile ride and we were tired and hungry and looking forward to the feast.

In the first place, the waiter who served us had on a dress suit of a vintage that no archeologist could determine. It had turned a bright green, although it had originally been black, and as he stopped in front of my brother-in-law, my brother-in-law pointed to the spots on the lapels and said, "I'll have some of that, some of

The first thing he served us was a kind of unpalatable soup. This was followed by a fish course. That slab of fish was cold and covered with a sauce which had congealed all over the surface and didn't taste like anything any way. I do not know what happened after that, because my brother-in-law and I repaired to a more hospitable environment and went to bed hungry.

The English dessert is usually called a "trifle"—I mean that is what they call it. The waiter says to you, "Will you have a cherry trifle, Sir?" But don't be deluded: it is no trifle. If you swallow it, it sticks around for hours and sometimes for days. It lodges in all the resting places of the digestive tract and raises hell every place it rests.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. K.: What are the symptoms of whooping cough? In what stage is it the worst? Do you lose it entirely at the end of nine weeks? Can you still pass the germ to others after the whooping cough is over?

Answer: The principal symptom of whooping cough consists in a succession of paroxysms of coughing due to the laryngitis and tracheitis. The secretion is so tenacious that it is very difficult to get up and finally causes a spasm of the larynx which makes the patient take a long, crowing inspiration; this is the "whoop." The spasm always also induces vomiting, so unless this is corrected by good, nutritious food, considerable nutrition loss occurs. The stages of whooping cough are usually given as the catarrhal stage, the paroxysmal stage and the stage of convalescence. Naturally, the paroxysmal stage is the worst. Nine weeks is only an average period for the duration of the disease. Sometimes it lasts several months. It is probably not contagious after the catarrhal stage.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has sent pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. From considerable familiarity with its people, I am convinced that Spain is democratic, with the exception of its Franco government but, from the United Nations' standpoint, its government has been a considerable worry right along.

Portugal is traditionally democratic. Those folk do not have to be steved about it. It is odd, they are geographically so closely associated, but it is true just the same. I have seen it from visits in both countries. Spain is democratic, but Portugal is more so. Portugal is not of much consequence, speaking of land-fighting value—too small and too few, and not enough natural resources to ward a shotgun.

Portugal does, to be sure, boast a nice long Atlantic coast line—ideal for German planes and submarines, our way.

The Germans, though, cannot get into Portugal except from behind, but through Spain.

That route would be corked up by anything other than a German-Spanish agreement.

That is, it would be by anything but a German stamping down upon Spain.

All the same, cables relate that the Reich's troops are pouring through German-occupied France toward and across the Spanish frontier, obviously bound to effect an occupation of Spain as they did in the Balkan nations.

Spain may not be so easy as the Balkans. It is more compact and stronger.

There is a strong suggestion that Caudillo Franco has anti-Axis cold feet at last—on his own account but, of course, for nobody else's. That, however, is immaterial.

Latin America certainly is what frets

Spain is too tied up with its offspring on this side of the Atlantic to be disengaged of it.

This tie is not alone commercial. It is also sentimental.

The United States got over being pro-British in due season—during the War of 1812, for instance.

The Spanish countries, though, are still hooked together on sentimental grounds.

They split on themselves—Spain, Portugal and Italy.

Portugal predominates, because Brazil (Portuguese) is the biggest of the bunch, bigger in territory than all the rest of the Latin-Americas combined, bigger in resources than, maybe, the United States, and politically solid just now.

Well, that makes Caudillo Franco pause and consider.

Where Contentment Lies

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"I'LL DRIVE you into town," Kay said dully. "I've got to get some dog meat anyway." Then she added, "How about a highball before you go? It's cold and it might do us both good."

"Just as you say," Jake said formally. She fixed two Scotch and sodas, hoping that the drink might soften Jake's attitude. But he remained aloof, indifferent. She felt as though he were a total stranger.

They drove into town, Jake driving with his eyes fixed on the road as though he expected to see a tiger leap out, Kay sitting deep in the corner, too miserable to even think. They got to the station ten minutes before the train was due.

"Don't wait," Jake said as he took out his bags.

"When will you be back?" Kay asked in a small voice.

"I really don't know. Right now I don't feel as though I could ever live in the house again. Goodbye. I'll be seeing you." He waved his hand, turned his back and went into the station. Kay watched him disappear.

It can't be true, she kept saying to herself. It can't be true. In a minute Jake will come out with a newspaper, all smiles, and we'll drive off down the road on our way home, together.

She couldn't move. She felt too cold, too weak. The train came in, left. She didn't look to see Jake get on. Mike passed her on his way home to supper.

"How's the pup getting on, Mrs. Kerr?" he asked.

"Fine, Mike." She'd forgotten all about the dog. Mike stared at her curiously.

"Waiting for someone?" he wanted to know.

"Oh, no, Mike." She roused herself, slipped over into the driver's seat. It was cold now. "I'm on my way home. Jump in and I'll give you a ride home."

The house seemed so quiet and deserted. She'd been alone many nights before, but then she knew Jake would be back the next day, the day after. She'd be waiting for his call, planning what to give him for dinner, mending his shirt. Tonight she felt all hollow inside. She'd have to think this out, make some plans. But her brain was numb now.

She heated some soup, gave the puppy a bowlful, drank a little herself. Then she lit a fire, tried to read. But the words became blurred. She couldn't remember what she had read.

The thought of sleeping in their room was intolerable. Everything in it had intimate associations. So about 11 o'clock she got a quilt, lay on the sofa and with the aid of a sleeping pill cried herself to sleep.

She didn't hear a word from Jake. He called up a few days later and invited herself up for an indefinite stay. Kay was never so pleased to see anyone in her life.

"What's the matter with you and Jake?" He asked bluntly the first evening while they were toasting marshmallows in front of the fire.

"Why?" Kay wondered how much Het knew.

"I saw him having dinner at a little place we all go to when we're hard up, and he was with Pat." Het studied her marshmallow intently. She didn't want to see Kay's face at that moment, but she thought she ought to know what was going on.

"He came over to say hello and I asked him what was the big idea. He looked tired and had a little cold."

"Oh Jake, that crazy boy," Kay cried out. "What did he say then?" she asked anxiously.

"He just said, 'You better ask my wife and tell her for me that we can play at this game.' What does it all mean? I don't want to be too inquisitive, but anything concerning you two naturally seems to concern me."

"I don't mind telling you; it will be a relief to talk to someone." So Kay told her the whole story. "And now I don't know what to do," she ended.

"You poor thing, this is a mess," Het conceded. She sat there, quietly thinking for a long time.

"I think it's only fair to warn you about Pat," she said. "Jake's known her for years. He's never really been keen about her, but she does have one attraction for him. She's a charter member of the 'fun first' school of thinking. She's a bad influence for him now, especially if he's unhappy and uncertain about you. This is a fateful moment in his career."

"Don't I know it. That's why I'd give my right arm if I could have prevented this business. He's all mixed up mentally, emotionally, just when he needs peace and stability. And a cold—he never gets them." She was miserable. "He's just got to give that concert. It's only three weeks off now."

Kay took a poker and stirred up the fire. She wished she hadn't eaten so many marshmallows. She was beginning to feel sick. Everything made her feel sick, though, lately. Probably it was because she was so upset about Jake.

"How charitable do you feel these days?" she asked Het.

"What's on your mind," Het said with one of those sweet, calm smiles of hers.

"I was wondering if you'd go back to town and take Jake in hand. He doesn't want me, but maybe he'd listen to you. You might be able to get him to take care of his cold, get some sleep."

Spain's Franco in a very hot spot Gradually shying away from Axis

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

EL CAUDILLO FRANCISCO FRANCO of Spain seems to be on an exceedingly hot spot. He was pro-Axis when the present war started, partly, probably, because he is, himself, a Spanish version of a fuhrer or duce. Furthermore, he had a civil war of his own to fight, to get his caudillo-ship established, and Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini helped him.

I would not want to give Franco credit for any feeling of gratitude toward them, but, early in today's conflict, he probably believed they were going to win. He afforded them some conveniences in the western Mediterranean and outspokenly sympathized with them, too, which perhaps has, in their case, a bit of immorality value also.

Of late, though, Franco appears to have been shying away from the Axis.

That, likewise, is understandable. Obviously the Spanish dictator has changed his mind; his more recent judgment evidently is that the Axis is going to be licked. This is all to the good, for he is a first-rate soldier and his guess is not to be sneezed at.

Anyhow, when the Axis powers began to hint at getting into North Africa, by way of Gibraltar, via Spain, Franco did not show much enthusiasm.

Contrariwise, a few days ago, dispatches into Washington brought news of a conference between Spain and Portugal for a solid neutrality compact between them, including the entire Iberian peninsula.

Strawberries Deserve Space in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

NOW THAT many forms of recreation and opportunities for outdoor sports are limited by war conditions, Victory gardening provides a useful, interesting and healthful exercise, in addition to supplies of nutritious food for the family table.

Since the government urges the inclusion of fruit in the Victory garden because of coming shortages of fruit from normal sources, strawberries deserve space in your garden plan, if you have the space. Strawberries, in fact, are the most popular of the small fruits for the Victory garden. A large patch of strawberries can be planted at little cost. Home-grown strawberries are more delicious in flavor than any commercially grown, for they can be left on the plants until fully ripe, thus having more flavor and sweetness.

Strawberries, however, should not be planted in newly turned soil and because of the almost cer-

Upper Arlington Defeats Circleville Outfit In District A Meet

Circleville high cagers put up a great game Saturday before they went down to defeat at the hands of Upper Arlington, 57-40, in the first round of the central district class A tournament.

The Red and Black, looking much better than many of the teams performing in the tournament, forced Arlington to play fast ball the whole way. The Golden Bears took a 13-4 lead at the quarter, and that edge proved too much to overcome.

The halftime count was 27-16, and at the end of the third period Arlington held only a 10-point advantage, 39-29. However, in the final period Arlington moved farther ahead.

Leon Sims, Tiger freshman, came within one point of equaling the central district scoring record when he hit the hoop for a total of 23. Sims went scoreless in the first period.

B. Siebert, with 18 points, paced Arlington.

IRISH TO GIVE UP COAST TILT FOR DURATION

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 8—Cancellation of the football game Notre Dame was to have played with Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., next September 25 was announced today by Frank Leahy, Notre Dame athletic director and football coach.

Leahy said he had telephoned Al Masters, Stanford athletic director, suggesting that the two schools cancel their football series for the duration of the war in conformity with the policy of the Western Conference to curtail long trips.

While not a member of the conference, Notre Dame follows closely its policy and annually plays several of its teams.

Leahy said Masters readily agreed to the cancellation as a measure to help relieve congestion on the railroads. The Notre Dame coach said he would make the same suggestion to Arnold Eddy, athletic manager at the University of California, in respect to the game the Trojans are scheduled to play at South Bend November 20.

LOS ANGELES, March 8—Possibility of a wartime football break between Notre Dame and the University of Southern California was revealed today by Arnold Eddy, athletic director at the California institution.

Admitting that the contest scheduled this year for South Bend, "has not yet been cancelled," Eddy declared:

"I believe the game will be cancelled unless there is a change in conditions. Intersectional football this year will have to be confined to overnight jumps."

Pickaway Moves Up In District B Tournament

Pickaway township cagers, undefeated in 18 efforts this winter on the hardwood court, will take on a mighty Marysville team next Saturday at 3 p. m. in the Otterbein college gym as they enter the quarter-finals of the tournament.

Pickaway, although off its game, won handily from Hebron Saturday night, the score being 38 to 17.

The Pirates held a 20-6 lead at the half.

None of John Hardin's lads was unusually hot during the entire fray, scoring honors being divided the whole way down the line.

Other teams remaining in the district B are LaRue, Plain City, Berlin, Edison, Marysville, Alexandria and Utica. No finals are played in the district B meet, two teams qualifying for further tournament play.

MICHIGAN AND OHIO DOMINATE BIG TEN FRAYS

CHICAGO, March 8—Michigan's track team, after two lean years, dominated the Western Conference today with a smashing 53 1/2-point victory in the annual indoor Big Ten track and field meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

The Wolverines' point total, an all-time record for the games, was the only mark that came out of the meet Saturday night. The loss of stars by ineligibility and to the armed forces was blamed for the mediocre performances.

Wisconsin was second with 37 1/2 points, Illinois third with 34 1/5, and Ohio State, defending champion, was fourth with 26. The other Big Ten teams finished as follows: Indiana, 13 1/5; Minnesota, 6 1/4; Purdue, 5; Iowa, 4 1/5; Northwestern, 1/5, and Chicago, 0.

Michigan's four-year reign as the Big Ten swimming champion was cut short by Ohio State in Northwestern university's pool. The Buckeyes won the title with 66 points to 61 for the Wolverines. Minnesota was third with 14 followed by Iowa, 11, Purdue, 8, Indiana, 8, and Northwestern, 4. Chicago, Illinois and Wisconsin failed to score.

Four new conference records were established. Keo Nakama, Ohio State, set new marks in the 220-yard free style in 2:11.2 and the 440-yard free style in 4:47.4. Harry Holiday, Michigan, set a new conference and national collegiate mark for the 150-yard backstroke in 1:31.7, and Michigan established a new conference record for the 300-yard medley relay in 2:56.7.

Besides Toledo, Capital and Akron, schools having a better than .500 percentage rating were, in order, Wilberforce, Bowling Green, Defiance, Wittenberg, Wooster, Otterbein, Mt. Union, Youngstown, Muskingum, Miami, Ohio university, Ohio Northern, Dayton, Baldwin-Wallace, Western Reserve and Cincinnati.

Bowling Green, paced by Wyndol Gray, freshman star from Akron won the season's scoring laurels with 1291 for 23 games, Toledo finishing second with 1259 for 22 tilts.

Capital and Akron, schools having a better than .500 percentage rating were, in order, Wilberforce, Bowling Green, Defiance, Wittenberg, Wooster, Otterbein, Mt. Union, Youngstown, Muskingum, Miami, Ohio university, Ohio Northern, Dayton, Baldwin-Wallace, Western Reserve and Cincinnati.

CHICAGO, March 8—With "opening round pairings completed, the fifth annual world's championship basketball tournament was scheduled today to get under way next Sunday afternoon in Chicago. STATE'S CAGE TEAMS MOVING TOWARD FINALS

Only 10 Undefeated Crews Remain In Ohio After Tournament Rounds

COMPETITION GOES ON

Pickaway One Of Seven Class B Quintets In Select Circle

COLUMBUS, March 8—Only 10 high school basketball teams boasting undefeated slates, three in Class A and seven in Class B, today remained in the running for the state cage championships to be decided in Columbus Saturday March 27.

Between now and that last Saturday in March all but four of the 82 Class A teams still in district play and all but four of the 86 Class B teams will have been eliminated in district and regional tournaments.

Martins Ferry, with 20 straight victories, boasts the best record in the A division. Defiance, with 19 straight, and Greenfield McClain, unbeaten in 15 contests, complete the list of A squads in the select list. All three are favorites to win district titles this week and qualify for regional play next week.

Plain City, with 26 in a row, heads the Class B group. Two other fives are still in the running for the Central District title but if they win quarter-final games, will hook up in the semi-finals. Thus either Pickaway Township, unbeaten in 15 encounters, or Utica, undefeated in 20, will be knocked out of regional play. Two teams from the district will qualify.

Others Compete

Two other B teams boasting perfect records compete in the Kent district this week, but chances are they will not meet since four teams will be qualified for regional play next week. They are Clearview, undefeated in 18 starts, and Champion, never on the short end of the score in 16 encounters.

Middle Point, with 21, and Bloomingburg, with 16, complete the unbeaten list in the smaller school bracket.

North Canton, a former State Class B champion now in the A circle, dropped from the undefeated ranks Saturday after 19 straight wins. Lorain upset the Stark County five, 33 to 31.

Xenia Central, the defending State Class A champ, advanced within two victories of regional qualification Saturday by nosing out Miami, 28 to 26, in the Dayton meet. It was Xenia's 18th win against two losses. Bellefontaine, boasting a 14-1 record, is the favorite to gain the other regional berth at Dayton.

The Northeastern district meet at Youngstown was one of the few to follow expectations. All four seeded fives, Canton McKinley, Canton Lehman, Warren and Youngstown South, are still in the running. Only two, however, can qualify for regional play with two more wins.

Marion Harding and Newark were favorites to gain the finals in the Central District Class A tourney while Dover and undefeated Martins Ferry were expected to win their tourneys at Dennison and Steubenville, respectively.

16 at Kent

Sixteen teams are still in the fight for two regional spots at Kent while four will fight it out for one spot at Euclid Shore. In the Northwestern District, unbeaten Defiance, Ashland, Toledo Maconber and Lima Central were favored to gain the Bowling Green regional.

The Class B race still was wide open. Several undefeated fives dropped out of the running last week. Amherst upset unbeaten Eaton in the Clearview meet Saturday, 44 to 35 and Ross Township upset previously undefeated West Liberty in the Springfield meet, 26 to 14.

Upper Arlington Defeats Circleville Outfit In District A Meet

Circleville high cagers put up a great game Saturday before they went down to defeat at the hands of Upper Arlington, 57-40, in the first round of the central district class A tournament.

The Red and Black, looking much better than many of the teams performing in the tournament, forced Arlington to play fast ball the whole way. The Golden Bears took a 13-4 lead at the quarter, and that edge proved too much to overcome.

The halftime count was 27-16, and at the end of the third period Arlington held only a 10-point advantage, 39-29. However, in the final period Arlington moved farther ahead.

Leon Sims, Tiger freshman, came within one point of equaling the central district scoring record when he hit the hoop for a total of 23. Sims went scoreless in the first period.

B. Siebert, with 18 points, paced Arlington.

IRISH TO GIVE UP COAST TILT FOR DURATION

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 8—Cancellation of the football game Notre Dame was to have played with Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., next September 25 was announced today by Frank Leahy, Notre Dame athletic director and football coach.

Leahy said he had telephoned Al Masters, Stanford athletic director, suggesting that the two schools cancel their football series for the duration of the war in conformity with the policy of the Western Conference to curtail long trips.

While not a member of the conference, Notre Dame follows closely its policy and annually plays several of its teams.

Leahy said Masters readily agreed to the cancellation as a measure to help relieve congestion on the railroads. The Notre Dame coach said he would make the same suggestion to Arnold Eddy, athletic manager at the University of California, in respect to the game the Trojans are scheduled to play at South Bend November 20.

LOS ANGELES, March 8—Possibility of a wartime football break between Notre Dame and the University of Southern California was revealed today by Arnold Eddy, athletic director at the California institution.

Admitting that the contest scheduled this year for South Bend, "has not yet been cancelled," Eddy declared:

"I believe the game will be cancelled unless there is a change in conditions. Intersectional football this year will have to be confined to overnight jumps."

STATE'S CAGE TEAMS MOVING TOWARD FINALS

Only 10 Undefeated Crews Remain In Ohio After Tournament Rounds

COMPETITION GOES ON

Pickaway One Of Seven Class B Quintets In Select Circle

COLUMBUS, March 8—Only 10 high school basketball teams boasting undefeated slates, three in Class A and seven in Class B, today remained in the running for the state cage championships to be decided in Columbus Saturday March 27.

Between now and that last Saturday in March all but four of the 82 Class A teams still in district play and all but four of the 86 Class B teams will have been eliminated in district and regional tournaments.

Martins Ferry, with 20 straight victories, boasts the best record in the A division. Defiance, with 19 straight, and Greenfield McClain, unbeaten in 15 contests, complete the list of A squads in the select list. All three are favorites to win district titles this week and qualify for regional play next week.

Plain City, with 26 in a row, heads the Class B group. Two other fives are still in the running for the Central District title but if they win quarter-final games, will hook up in the semi-finals.

Thus either Pickaway Township, unbeaten in 18 encounters, or Utica, undefeated in 20, will be knocked out of regional play. Two teams from the district will qualify.

Others Compete
Two other B teams boasting perfect records compete in the Kent district this week, but chances are they will not meet since four teams will be qualified for regional play next week. They are Clearview, undefeated in 18 starts, and Champion, never on the short end of the score in 10 encounters.

Middle Point, with 21, and Bloomingburg, with 16, complete the unbeaten list in the smaller-school bracket.

North Canton, a former State Class B champion now in the A circle, dropped from the undefeated ranks Saturday after 19 straight wins. Lorain upset the Stark County five, 33 to 31.

Xenia Central, the defending State Class A champ, advanced within two victories of regional qualification Saturday by losing out to Miami, 28 to 26, in the Dayton meet. It was Xenia's 18th win against two losses. Bellefontaine, boasting a 14-1 record, the favorite to gain the other regional berth at Dayton.

The Northeastern district meet at Youngstown was one of the few to follow expectations. All four seeded fives, Canton, McKinley, Canton Lehman, Warren and Youngstown South, are still in the running. Only two, however, can qualify for regional play with two more wins.

Marion Harding and Newark were favorites to gain

"INFORMATION, PLEASE"

"Information Please" is going through with its transcontinental broadcast on Monday at 9:30 p. m. over NBC. It was originally scheduled for Washington's birthday, but was postponed when the President spoke. For the first time in the history of "Information Please," a guest expert will be piped in from the west coast. Gregory Ratoff, film star and director, as a guest expert, will be answering questions from Hollywood via a second wire, as the rest of the Clifton Fadiman in New York. Ratoff will have his own studio audience in Hollywood and when he pushes a button there, a bell will ring in Radio City indicating that he wants to answer a question. Producer Dan Golen-paul is making this first transcontinental experiment with an eye to bringing other Hollywood celebrities to "Information Please" in a like manner on future broadcasts.

"COMEDY CARAVAN"

Shakespeare, who has been known to turn in his grave from time to time at the tortured performances of his plays will be known at Rotating Will after Friday, March 12, at 9 p. m., when Eddie Green comes to the CBS "Comedy Caravan" to present his version of "Macbeth." One of Green's "Heroes was People" series, "Macbeth" tells the story of the Scotch king in somewhat different style than that used by the Bard of Avon. Lew Lehr, the newsreel comedian, and Herb

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT ALTERNATIVES

WHEN YOU are in a tough contract and you see two different ways to play the hand, don't merely select one of them because of no particular reason. Count up what the result figures to be if you choose one method and compare it with the probable outcome if you pick the other plan. This is especially vital when the choice is between ruffing out certain losers and trying to discard them on a side suit.

♠ K 7 2	♠ 9 7 6
♥ J 5 3 2	♥ K 10 7 5
♦ 6 2	♦ 3
♣ Q 5 3	♣ A 4 2
♠ A Q 10 6	♠ J 9 5
♥ 4 3	♥ Q 10 4
♦ A J 4	♦ Q 9 8
♣ 10 7 6	♣ K J 9 8

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

That was rather strong bidding, but it developed at two tables of a tournament on this deal. With both spades and diamonds bid, South shied away from these suits, having a choice of leads between clubs and hearts, properly selecting hearts, the 4 at each table. After winning that with the A, one declarer decided to ruff out hearts and the other to establish spades.

The ruffing sent the heart 6 to the diamond 4, cashed the spade A, ruffed the spade 3 with the diamond 3, the heart 7 with the diamond J, the spade 4 with the diamond 5, the heart 9 with the diamond A and the spade 6 with the diamond K. He cashed the club A for his ninth trick, but then lost the last four tricks, to the club Q, diamond Q and club K.

The other declarer, counting up, saw that by the ruffing method he could get only three tricks with his side suit aces, plus three with heart ruffs and three with spade ruffs, a total of nine, so then counted the other alternative. This showed that, if spades were divided and the diamonds three-two, with South holding the Q, he could drop trumps, ruff up spades and have three spades for heart discards, so that there would be only two losing clubs. So he chose that plan, which might make his contract.

After winning the opener with the heart A, he led to the spade A, ruffed the 3 with the diamond 3, finessed the diamond J, ruffed the spade 4 with the diamond 7, setting up the suit, cashed the diamond K and A to drop trumps, and then ran the dummy's remaining three spades, parking his hearts on them. He cashed the club A then for the eleventh trick and conceded the last two.

800 County Men Affected by New Classification Order

4-H DIVISION ELIMINATED BY OFFICIAL ORDER

Registrants 38 TO 45 To Be Listed In Regular Draft Groups

NEW PROGRAM EXPECTED

President Believed Ready To Reveal Plans For New Manpower Setup

Signs increased Monday that the armed services again may start to take men of over 38 years for limited military duty to release physically-qualified soldiers for combat service.

At the same time it was indicated in Washington that President Roosevelt may announce a new manpower program this week, as congress prepared to take action in the muddled manpower situation.

These developments came as announcement was made that the War Manpower Commission's "work or fight" policy would be extended to 6,500,000 American men in the 38 to 45 year age group.

Pickaway county Selective Service office reports that it has 797 white men and 17 Negroes in Class 4-H, the division set up for men of 38 to 45. This class is now wiped out, with all persons listed in it being put in 1-A, 3-A, 4-F, or wherever they fit. The board only recently completed classifying its 38-45 men in 4-H, and now is ready to start reclassifying all these men again.

Many Family Men
Of the 800-plus men in 4-H many are family men who will be classified in 3-A, 3-B or 3-C depending on their occupation.

A special committee appointed by Mr. Roosevelt has agreed, it is reported, on basic plans for a solution of the manpower tangle.

It was understood that the group concluded that the high command's goal for a fighting force of 10,800,000 men this year must be retained.

Despite a Manpower Commission order to defer necessary farm workers, supporters of the Bankhead bill keeping all agricultural labor farm military service this year indicated they will call up the measure in the senate tomorrow.

Action is also expected in the fight to keep married men with children from being inducted and to reduce the size of the planned armed force to about 9,000,000 men.

Maximum Age Hoist
That the present maximum draft age of 37 may soon be raised to 44 inclusive to provide men for limited military service was indicated in the Manpower Commission's order to draft boards over the week end to place no more men over 38 in class 4-H, the class for registrants beyond the present military age limit, but to classify them according to their occupation or dependency.

Furthermore, boards were advised that beginning May 1, they should reclassify out of class 4-H all other registrants and rate them according to their occupations.

Continue In Class
"Those registrants who are reclassified out of class 4-H and placed in class 2-C or class 3-C because of their agricultural occupation or endeavor prior to May 1, will be continued in those classes as long as they are necessary to agriculture, if men over 38 are called for service," the WMC said.

"Other registrants reclassified after May 1 and placed in other classes will remain there, if men over 38 are called, only so long as men in their class would be deferred—as, for example, normally not longer than six months if they are given a class 2-A or class 2-B deferment for occupation other than agricultural."

Universal Yardstick
The Manpower Commission's order applies the same yardstick to men in the 38-45 group as is applied to those under 38. They are rated according to the importance of their jobs to the war effort and those in the least essential occupations face induction first.

"Registrants who are reclassified out of class 4-H and who have no cause for deferment other than age will be placed in class 1-A and will be the first men over 38 inducted if and when the armed forces determine they can be used in the military establishment," the WMC said.

Although Commissioner McNutt previously has stated that only 28 percent of the men over 38 inducted were found physically fit for military service, reports have circulated that it will be necessary for the service again to dip into this classification because of the nation's critically tight manpower situation.

Application of the "work-or-fight" policy, first issued for a list of 70 non-deferrable occupa-

Circleville is to have a recruiting station for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. Lieutenants Louise Kennedy and Sarah Seawell of the Columbus recruiting office were in Circleville Saturday arranging for use of a room in the postoffice building every Friday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Persons interested in joining the WAAC unit are urged to plan to visit recruiting headquarters during those hours.

Applicants must be citizens of the United States between 21 and 44, inclusive; submit proof of date of birth and citizenship; have an excellent character; present two character references from responsible business or professional people in her community, not relatives, who are personally acquainted with the applicant's ability; pass a mental alertness test, and physical requirements.

As general an applicant must be in good health, have good sight and hearing.

No woman will be accepted for the WAAC organization who has anyone dependent on her for financial support, and no applicant may be accepted for enrollment if she has one or more children under 14 years of age.

Women enrolled for the auxiliary unit will serve in noncombatant roles. Many officers are now on duty at recruiting and induction stations, releasing men for front-line service.

Miss Mary L. Hammond, of Orient Route 1, has completed basic training at the First Women's Army Auxiliary Corps training center at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and has been assigned for special training in the bakers' and cooks' school.

Miss Hammond will receive additional training in a specialized field preparatory to taking over an important behind-the-lines Army job, releasing a soldier for combat duty. There are now more than 100 jobs listed by the Army replacing soldiers with WAACs. Among them are aircraft warning personnel, bakers and cooks, camera technicians, chauffeurs, classification specialists, clerks, draftsmen, librarians, machine record operators, radio technicians, stenographers, telephone operators, truck drivers, typists, bombight repairmen, weather observers, and link trainer and glider instructors.

HUEY LONG TACTICS

There is more than meets the eye behind the opposition of Louisiana's shrewd, active-as-a-grasshopper Senator Ellender to the appointment of Texas' Judge Jimmy Allred to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

S Senator Ellender, of course, wants Judge Archie Higgins of Louisiana appointed to the Court of Appeals instead of Allred, and there is a very good reason. Ellender, once the messenger boy of Huey Long, is planning to run for governor of Louisiana next year. He wants to do a Huey Long and hold the two jobs of governor and U. S. Senator for a brief period.

But there is one potential candidate who might stand in his way—Judge Higgins. Higgins, now on the state Supreme Court, is a popular figure in Louisiana and probably will run for governor—if he doesn't land on the U. S. Court of Appeals.

So Senator Ellender is moving heaven and earth to block the confirmation of Texas' Judge Allred, and put Higgins on the Circuit Court.

This is not the first time Ellender has pulled strong senatorial wires on judgeships. In 1940 he wanted his law partner, Adrian J. Calhouet made a U. S. district judge. But the Justice Department wanted to appoint Rene Viosca, who as U. S. District Attorney had done a superb job of jailing Governor Leche, Seymour Weiss and the old Huey Long gang.

Senator Ellender, however, was smart. He knew that Roosevelt needed votes badly to extend Cordell Hull's reciprocity treaties. The line-up in the Senate looked as if it would be about 42-42. So he held out his vote and that of his colleague Senator Overton. They staged a sit-down strike until he got his law partner appointed to a U. S. judgeship—then he voted for Hull's trade treaties.

Today, Ellender has the Louisiana congressional delegation staging the same sort of a sit-down strike against all Roosevelt legislation—unless he gets Archie Higgins, his potential rival for governor, appointed instead of Judge Allred to the circuit court.

BEEF FROM BRITAIN

When Ed Stettinius, grey-haired young Lend-Lease Administrator, finished his testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Democratic and Republican members alike did an unusual thing. They gave him an ovation.

And in their final report the committee went further and wrote this tribute: "Mr. Stettinius has been helpful and forthright. The members of the committee have been highly impressed with his integrity and ability and feel that his selection as administrator of lend-lease has been a distinctly meritorious choice."

There were various reasons for this tribute. One important reason was that Stettinius showed how lend-lease had worked both ways, how Britain was paying for the cost of our army in England, and how, although we shipped 18 million pounds of beef to Britain last year, we received 25 million pounds of beef from the British Empire—Australia and New Zealand.

That may be a good thing to remember when food is short and people are grouching about lend-lease.

More than half of all Lend-Lease supplies exported in 1942 were military items.

KITTEN TAKES FULL CHARGE OF POLICE STATION

Police Chief W. F. McCrady has a new pet, a kitten of the alley variety. And the feline is keeping him plenty busy.

The little fellow either wandered into police headquarters or was taken into city hall by a well wisher who thought the chief didn't have enough to do. Now there's nothing to do but let it stay there. To take it away would arouse the ire of the department chief. To leave it there also arouses his ire, but in a different way.

McCrady was concentrating on making out a report. There were a lot of figures in it, and he was centering all his time on his work.

The cat sat on the chief's desk watching his ink-filled pen moving back and forth, never taking its eyes from the pen. Just as the chief was ready to put down the final figure the kitten with a swipe of its paw struck the pen from his hand and spilled ink all over the report sheet.

The chief didn't know whether to toss the kitten into Franklin street or whether to fill a bucket with water and try to drown it. But the little fellow stays.

The kitten's favorite resting place is in the crown of Chief McCrady's hat. Every time the chief puts his hat on his desk into its crown jumps the kitten.

It's a pest, and some day may upset the chief's state of mind a little too much. But right now it reigns supreme at city hall.

Incidentally Chief McCrady doesn't know whether to call it Tommy or Tabby.

OHIO TIME TO GUIDE WORKERS AT LOCKBOURNE

Circleville and Pickaway county men who are employed as civilian workers at Lockbourne army air base started Monday to work on "Ohio" time instead of Eastern War Time. The change was announced by base officers.

Despite the change official business at the field will continue to be on Eastern War Time.

Four Questions Every American Should Ask Himself

1. HOW CAN I HELP WIN THE WAR?
2. HOW CAN I KEEP THE COST OF LIVING DOWN?
3. HOW CAN I BE SURE TO HAVE SOME MONEY TO TIDE ME OVER THE PERIOD OF READJUSTMENT AFTER THE WAR?
4. HOW CAN I GET $4 FOR $3?

An answer to all four questions is: BUY WAR BONDS through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan.

The more Bonds you buy, the more quickly we can win the war.

The more Bonds you buy, the more you reduce the possibility of a rising cost of living.

The more Bonds you buy now, the more money you will have when the war is won.

The more Bonds you buy, the more four dollars you'll get for three!

Put at least 10 percent—not 6 percent or 7 percent or even 9 percent, but 10 percent—of your earnings into War Bonds. Do it through your company. Twenty million Americans are doing it now. Let's make it at least 10 percent for every American!

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO

If you are—

1. Already setting aside 10 percent of your pay for War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan—boost that 10 percent if you can.
2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
3. Working in a plant where the Pay-Roll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager—and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
4. Unable to get in on the Pay-Roll Savings Plan for any reason, go to your local bank. They will be glad to help you start a plan of your own.

DO IT NOW!

800 County Men Affected by New Classification Order

4-H DIVISION ELIMINATED BY OFFICIAL ORDER

Registrants 38 TO 45 To Be Listed In Regular Draft Groups

NEW PROGRAM EXPECTED

President Believed Ready To Reveal Plans For New Manpower Setup

Signs increased Monday that the armed services again may start to take men of over 38 years for limited military duty to release physically-qualified soldiers for combat service.

At the same time it was indicated in Washington that President Roosevelt may announce a new manpower program this week, as congress prepared to take action in the muddled manpower situation.

These developments came as an announcement was made that the War Manpower Commission's "work or fight" policy would be extended to 6,500,000 American men in the 38 to 45 year age group.

Pickaway county Selective Service office reports that it has 797 white men and 17 Negroes in Class 4-H, the division set up for men of 38 to 45. This class is now wiped out, with all persons listed in it being put in 1-A, 3-A, 4-F, or wherever they fit. The board only recently completed classifying its 38-45 men in 4-H, and now is ready to start reclassifying all these men again.

Many Family Men Of the 800-plus men in 4-H many are family men who will be classified in 3-A, 3-B or 3-C depending on their occupation.

A special committee appointed by Mr. Roosevelt has agreed, it is reported, on basic plans for a solution of the manpower tangle.

It was understood that the group concluded that the high command's goal for a fighting force of 10,800,000 men this year must be retained.

Despite a Manpower Commission order to defer necessary farm workers, supporters of the Bankhead bill keeping all agricultural labor military service this year indicated they will call up the measure in the senate tomorrow.

Action is also expected in the fight to keep married men with children from being inducted and to reduce the size of the planned armed force to about 9,000,000 men.

Maximum Age Hoist That the present maximum draft age of 37 may soon be raised to 44 inclusive to provide men for limited military service was indicated in the Manpower Commission's order to draft boards over the week end to place no more men over 38 in class 4-H, the class for registrants beyond the present military age limit, but to classify them according to their occupation or dependency.

Furthermore, boards were advised that beginning May 1, they should reclassify out of class 4-H all other registrants and rate them according to their occupations.

Continue In Class "Those registrants who are reclassified out of class 4-H and placed in class 2-C or class 3-C because of their agricultural occupation or endeavor prior to May 1, will be continued in those classes as long as they are necessary to agriculture, if men over 38 are called for service," the WMC said.

Other registrants reclassified after May 1 and placed in other classes will remain there, if men over 38 are called, only so long as men in their class would be deferred—as, for example, normally not longer than six months if they are given a class 2-A or class 2-B deferment for occupation other than agricultural."

Universal Yardstick The Manpower Commission's order applies the same yardstick to men in the 38-45 group as is applied to those under 38. They are rated according to the importance of their jobs to the war effort and those in the least essential occupations face induction first.

"Registrants who are reclassified out of class 4-H and who have no cause for deferment other than age will be placed in class 1-A and will be the first men over 38 inducted if and when the armed forces determine they can be used in the military establishment," the WMC said.

Although Commissioner McNutt previously has stated that only 28 percent of the men over 38 inducted were found physically fit for military service, reports have circulated that it will be necessary for the service again to dip into this classification because of the nation's critically tight manpower situation.

Application of the "work-or-fight" policy, first issued for a list of 70 non-deferrable occupa-

3. HOW CAN I BE SURE TO HAVE SOME MONEY TO TIDE ME OVER THE PERIOD OF READJUSTMENT AFTER THE WAR?
4. HOW CAN I GET $4 FOR $3?

An answer to all four questions is: BUY WAR BONDS through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan.

The more Bonds you buy, the more quickly we can win the war.

The more Bonds you buy, the more you reduce the possibility of a rising cost of living.

The more Bonds you buy now, the more money you will have when the war is won.

The more Bonds you buy, the more four dollars you'll get for three!

Put at least 10 percent—not 6 percent or 7 percent or even 9 percent, but 10 percent—of your earnings into War Bonds. Do it through your company. Twenty million Americans are doing it now. Let's make it at least 10 percent for every American!

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO

If you are—

1. Already setting aside 10 percent of your pay for War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan—boost that 10 percent if you can.
2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
3. Working in a plant where the Pay-Roll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager—and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
4. Unable to get in on the Pay-Roll Savings Plan for any reason, go to your local bank. They will be glad to help you start a plan of your own.
